

About the New Zealand School of Export

The New Zealand School of Export is a Charitable Trust established in 2007 for the purposes of undertaking the professional education of New Zealand exporters and those who support them in their role as exporters. It does this by running the Diploma of International Trade through distance education. The Diploma is recognised as the route to achieving the Global Trade Professional designation.

The School is this country's only IATTO Accredited Provider. IATTO (the International Association of Trade Training Organisations) is the global body responsible for setting the standards for those engaged in international trade.

Scholarship Information

Through prudent financial management, the School has maintained its course fees at $9280, which is the same level since the first intake of exporters in 2007 and now, having reinvested some of the proceeds from these fees, the School is able to offer a range of Scholarships to encourage exporters to achieve their full potential.

The School has also partnered with a number of Chambers of Commerce, Business Councils and Associations to offer joint scholarships for members and just recently, Ricoh New Zealand Ltd have added their support in the form of a new scholarship for sustainable exporters.

Who can apply

Scholarships are available to businesses that are already exporting, or wish to export as part of their overall business strategy. To qualify for a Scholarship, exporters must be enrolled in the Diploma of International Trade at the time of applying.

RICOH Sustainable Exporter Award

The Ricoh Sustainable Exporter Award is valued at NZ$1200. Environmental sustainability is at the core of Ricoh New Zealand's business strategy and knowing that exporters are under increasing pressure to reduce their carbon footprint, Ricoh is keen to support businesses wanting to succeed internationally, but not at the expense of the environment.

Dr Robin W. N. Smith Scholarship

This New Zealand School of Export Scholarship is in memory of one of its founders - Dr Robin Smith. The Scholarship equates to a discretionary amount decided by the Scholarships Committee, usually over $1200 and is awarded to an individual who may not yet be working within an exporting environment but indicates a high degree of potential success within the field of international trade.

Dr Romuald Rudzki Export Scholarship

Named after the School's founder, this Scholarship – valued at NZ$5000 is specifically for “short poppies with ambition”. Many relatively new and often smaller companies struggle to gain a foothold in the international marketplace because they don't have the luxury of big budgets to train key staff to international levels; and they are ineligible for government funding because they have failed to reach the prescribed level of turnover. This Scholarship will be awarded to the applicant who can prove they have a great business idea/product; is unable to gain the assistance required to cover tuition fees; and has the commitment to complete the Diploma of International Trade.

Additional Scholarships Categories (valued at NZ$1200)

- Business start-up (in business less than 2 years)
- Māori exporter
- Migrant exporter
- Pacific Island exporter
- Rural exporter (business is located outside main cities)
- SME (employs less than 20 people)
- Sole trader
- Chamber of Commerce/Business Council/Association member – please refer to the New Zealand School of Export website for details of participating Chambers of Commerce and Business Councils

Application Form

You are asked to provide the name of one referee to support your application. This referee must be able to comment on your personal qualities, and may be contacted by the Scholarship Committee. Your referee cannot be a family member. You may use a referee for example from a Chamber of Commerce, local Economic Development Agency or someone who knows your business.

Selection Process

The Scholarship Committee will consider all applications and award one Scholarship per year within each Scholarship Category. If no suitable candidate is identified, the Scholarship will not be awarded. You will be notified of the final decision of the Scholarship Committee within two weeks.

Scholarships will be granted based on:

- Commitment to studying the Diploma of International Trade
- Likely ability of the applicant to successfully complete the programme
- Financial need
